By completing and returning this form you are agreeing to have your details stored on a secure database that can only be accessed by authorised NTW researchers who can then contact you about potential relevant research.

There is no obligation to take part in any research. You can have your details removed at any time without this affecting you in any way.

Any additional comments (Optional)

e.g. Do you have a mental illness, if so what? Are you a relative of somebody with a mental illness, and if so what? Are you a potential healthy volunteer?

We are keen to engage with people who are interested in participating in research and to develop these links we are building a register. Anyone can join the register. You don't need to have a mental health problem. The register will help to connect researchers with people with mental health difficulties, relatives of people with mental health difficulties, potential healthy volunteers, or anyone who is interested.

The register will help people be informed and involved and will allow researchers to identify and contact potential volunteers. It will therefore make it possible to do vital research.

We will also keep you up to date with research findings with regular newsletters and events.

If you would like more information or would like to ask any questions about the register please contact Sam Bulmer, Research Nurse, on 0191 208 1393 or email: research.register@newcastle.ac.uk

Working together for better mental health research

What is it?
 The register will hold the names of people interested in hearing about, developing or taking part in research.

How does it work?
 The register will match people to studies which may be suitable for them and invite them to take part.

Why do we need it?
 By informing and involving people in research we hope to better understand mental illness and improve care received.

What sort of research might it be?
 The research studies may include medical examinations, questionnaires, scans or blood samples.
